

Fiction | 14.8 x 21.5 cm | 448 pages | October 2023

The press about The Lion's Shadow:

'Linda Dielemans writes brilliantly, with lively dialogue, and brings a piece of history to life. A very successful historical children's book that leaves you hoping for a follow-up'
- Toin Duijx in Wykein

ALSO BY LINDA DIELEMANS:

King's Game

Linda Dielemans

Illustrated by Sanne te Loo

Exciting adventure surrounding the famous Lewis chess pieces - seventy-nine walrus-ivory figures from the 12th century. The story unfolds from three surprising viewpoints: a girl who turns her handicap into her strength (because she can only see sharply up close, she can carve ivory like no other); the viewpoint of the chess pieces themselves; and the viewpoint of the boy who finds the pieces hundreds of years later in 19th century Scotland.

Linda Dielemans combines her expertise as an archaeologist and skills as an author in beautifully-written fiction.

- ◆ Wonderfully adventurous historical YA novel about the famous Lewis chess pieces
- ◆ Linda Dielemans introduces an exceptional archaeological find to children in a unique, exciting format
- ◆ Full-page plates in vibrant colours; illustrated by Sanne te Loo

Rights sold:

Linda Dielemans' book The Lion's Shadow was sold to Freies Geistesleben (Germany) and Trebaruna (Portugal).